The best bb cream and tinted moisturiser to provide the perfect base for summer skin

It's glow time.

Sometimes you want full-on coverage, with layers of flawless foundation so impenetrable no pore or pimple stands a chance of peeking through. Coverage so thick you'll need to swap your fave cleanser for a chisel and hammer. A finish so freakin' flawless it laughs in the face of filters.

But sometimes, all you want (or need) is a little helping hand of a product. Something to even things out, brighten things up and smooth things over. Coverage, but without the fear of clogging or caking. A lil' somethin' somethin' with some skincare benefits. And if backstage at the shows was anything to go by, we're all going to be ditching foundation soon anyway for a natural makeup look.

This is where the best BB cream or tinted moisturiser (and even CC creams) can really come into their own. Lending a helping (but not heavy) hand, they can transform skin tone and texture, correct discoloration and dark circles and blur open pores with one quick sweep. It's hardly surprising why it's a makeup artist must-have.

Tinted Day Cream, £28.50, Dr. Hauschka

Rich and hydrating, this sinks in leaving a medium level of coverage. With zero chance of caking, it's perfect for dry or mature skin.
